THIRD PARTY SEEN AS GOP CAMPAIGN AID

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(UP)—A third party ticket, headed by Rep. William Lemke, N. D., author of an inflationary farm mortgage bill, entered the 1936 presidential sweepstakes today and will oppose President Roosevelt and Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee, in all states in November.

Supporting it was the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, and his National Union for Social Justice. Expected to endorse it within the next two weeks was Dr. Francis E. Townsend and his Townsend old age pensions clubs, and the remnants of the late Huey P. Long's Share-the-Wealth club. Many political observers also expected it to obtain support from smaller organizations advocating inflationary and other radical legislation.

Coughlin Endorses Party
A few hours after Lemke announced his candidacy and made public a platform in Washington, Coughlin went on a nation-wide radio network last night and announced his whole-hearted endorsement. Coughlin has been a fer-

Bourbons Have $2,000,000 War Chest

DAVIS QUILTS CAMPAIGN

HARMONY TO MARK PARTY CONVENTION

Farley Predicts Talmadge Will Line Up, Support President Roosevelt

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(UP)—Democrats will spend at least $2,000,000 in their fight to re-elect President Roosevelt, Postmaster General James A. Farley said today.

Farley took active charge today of the pre-convention strategy and said the New Deal war chest was in excellent shape.

"We have enough money to pay all our bills," he added, "and we expect to spend somewhere around $2,000,000 on the campaign. That is about the same amount we spent in 1932, but about $300,000 of that went to the payment of debts which we inherited from the previous national committee."

Third Party Threat
Democrats go into their convention with the threat that a third party, headed by Congressman William Lemke, may cut seriously into their popular vote, particularly in the radical north-west where there is sentiment for inflation as a means of easing the farmers' debt burden.

Farley was cautious today in his comment on the Lemke uprising, but indicated he might have a statement on it later.

"I'm not saying anything about that right now," was his comment when asked whether Lemke was considered to be a threat to Mr. Roosevelt's re-election.

The platform is completely in the hands of Sen. Robert F. Wagner of New York, Farley said. He expects the planks which Wagner will bring to Philadelphia tomorrow to be adopted without opposition.

Complete Harmony
Democrats will go into the campaign in complete harmony, Farley said, and he expects such rebels as Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, to support the president.

FIEND SLAYER DENIED RIGHT OF GUILT PLEA

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20.—(UP)—Albert Walter Jr., 28, confessed silk stocking garrotter and attacker of Blanche Cousins, 31, of Idaho Falls, Ida., today abandoned his determination to "commit suicide" by means of the state's hangman's noose.

"I can't fight the whole state," he said.

The sandy-haired son of a Boston back bay real estate dealer, directly branded his unwelcome counsel as a "publicity seeker" while discussing the state's refusal of his guilty plea and substitution of "not guilty by reason of insanity."

"If they want to drag this thing out for notoriety or any other purposes, there's nothing I can do about it," Walter said.

He refused to comment on the possible sanity tests he may be given by three alienists appointed

FITTS DEFIED IN ORDER FOR DEATH PROBE

LOS ANGELES, June 20.—(UP)—A crematorium today defied District Attorney Byron Fitts' order to give up the body of 84-year-old Baroness Etta Morrill, reputed possessor of some of the missing Hapsburg jewels, for an investigation into her death.

Fitts announced he would obtain a court order returning the body to the county morgue to determine whether her death last Sunday was caused by heart disease, the cause listed by a physician's certificate.

The baroness was found dead upon a couch in her home last Sunday. With her, Fitts said, was a young man whose name was not revealed. An inhalator failed to revive her and a doctor's certificate listed heart attack as the cause of death.

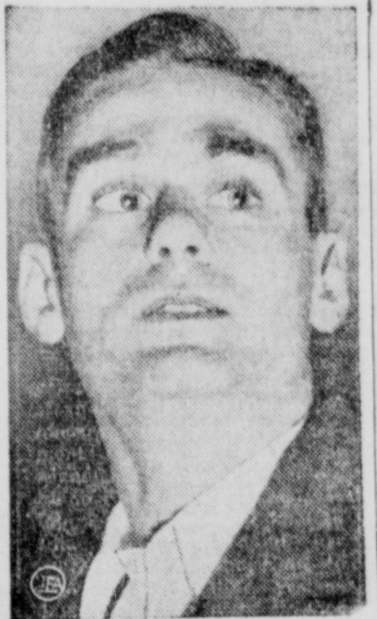

Investigator Lloyd Yarrow of Fitts' staff said he was investigating reports that the noblewoman was involved in a love affair with a much younger man.

He said she informed friends recently that she changed her will and intended bequeathing them some of the famous jewels. A former will, he said, left all her property to an attorney who was associated with her for 15 years.

The district attorney ordered an investigation when it appeared the baroness made two wills, and upon hearing from friends that she was involved recently in a love affair with a much younger man.

The aged woman, said by friends to have been a French noblewoman and descendant of Marie Antoinette, was found by her maid gasping on the couch of her living room Sunday. She was scantily clad.

"I KILLED HER"
Albert Walter Jr., 28, married wanderer from New York, walked into a San Francisco police station and calmly told amazed police "I strangled a girl." He then led officers to a nearby apartment where the body of Blanche Cousins, 31-year-old Idaho Falls, Idaho, nurse was found with a tightly knotted silk stocking around her throat. Denied the right to plead guilty, Walter, yesterday, entered a plea of "not guilty by reason of insanity."

COMMUNIST IN RACE FOR CONGRESS

Deadline Finds 32 Candidates in Arena; Martin Seeks Supervisorial Job

LAST MINUTE developments in the political situation, marking withdrawal of James L. Davis as a Democratic candidate for congress, and the entry of Charles McLaughlin, well-known Communist, as a candidate of that party for congress, left a total of 32 candidates in the campaign arena as the filing deadline arrived at noon today.

New developments in the first supervisorial district campaign brought W. R. Martin, prominent Santa Ana realtor and church worker into the field as a candidate for supervisor, and also saw the failure of the only woman candidate, Mrs. Pauline Collins, to complete her filing.

Withdrawal Surprise
Davis' decision to withdraw from the congressional race after taking out his nomination papers yesterday, shared surprise with the appearance of Orange County's first Communist candidate for any office. McLaughlin, formerly resident of Anaheim, and later of Santa Ana, now gives his residence as Laguna Beach. He required only two signatures on his nominating petition, as there are but 12 Communists registered in the nineteenth congressional district.

The completed list of candidates, aside from central committee candidates, shows four candidates for congress, five for the state senate, two for the assembly in the 74th district and seven in the 75th district, one for superior court judge, six for first district supervisor and five for third district supervisor. William Schumacher, of Buena Park, former supervisor and reported a probable candidate this year, did not file.

The full list of candidates follows:

Congress—Sam L. Collins, Rep. and Dem.; Ray Adkinson, Dem. and Rep.; N. E. West, Dem.; Charles McLaughlin, Communist.

State Senate—Joseph P. Smith, Rep.; Thomas L. McFadden, Rep.; Dr. G. H. Huston, Rep.; Harry C. Westover, Dem.; Bryan Bostick, Dem.

Assembly, 74th district—James B. Utt, Rep. and Dem.; Clyde Watson, Dem. and Rep.

Assembly, 75th district—James Heffron, Dem.; Robert Hatfield, Dem.; Harry O. Warton, Dem.; W. O. Eades, Dem.; L. P. Nichols, Rep.; Frank Morris, Rep.; Thomas Kuchel, Rep.

Supervisor, first district—W. C. Jerome, W. B. Martin, J. A. Cranston, Sam Preble, Steele Finley, Walter K. Robb.

Supervisor, third district—Leroy Lyon, W. J. Carmichael, S. James Tuffree, Harry D. Riley, Anthony F. Palla.

Superior Judge—G. K. Scovel.

CALL NEW MEET AIMED TO END CITRUS STRIKE

WITH PLANS made for a second meeting, Monday afternoon, as an effort to end the citrus pickers strike in Orange county, reports from a score of groves and Mexican colonies this morning indicated the strike is almost broken.

In the first place, a 2 1/2 hour meeting yesterday afternoon with Edward H. Fitzgerald, U. S. Commissioner of Conciliation, Lucas Lucio, Dr. L. C. Deming, Frank Spire and 14 Mexicans present, a total of absolutely nothing was accomplished.

Packers Not Represented
Packing house representatives were not present and Dr. Deming, widely known citrus grower of Anaheim, granted that he and other growers "cannot pay higher wages than our incomes allow." Dr. Deming stating that he was willing to give the Mexicans "and everyone else" a square deal, and that he was at the meeting only as his own personal representative, showed authenticated papers which stated figures of incomes on his more than $200,000 investment in citrus groves. They showed his investment during the past year brought him no more than 2 per cent and therefore "flat salary rate of $2.30 per day for pickers" was "impossible." The pickers present, led by L. A.

PERMIT STATE TO REGISTER WARRANTS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 20.—(UP)—California may legally register state warrants in view of a lack of funds available at this time, according to a supreme court ruling received here by state officials today.

In a test case brought by Controller Ray L. Riley against state Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, the court held that the registration of a warrant represented a "legal appropriation."

"Revenues may be appropriated in anticipation of their receipt just as effectively as when such revenues are physically in the treasury," the opinion stated.

FAMOUS POLY OWL TAKES LAST FLIGHT

CORPORATION TAX MEASURE TO PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(UP)—The senate today approved a measure to President Roosevelt the New Deal's $800,000,000 corporation tax bill designed to plug tax evasion loopholes in the upper brackets and to penalize failure to distribute corporate profits as taxable dividends.

Passage left the Guffey coal control bill practically the only remaining obstacle to adjournment.

The upper chamber completed congressional action on the controversial measure amid a flurry of opposition debate by Democratic rebels and Republicans who intend to carry the battle into the presidential campaign. The law also probably will be contested in the courts.

WOMAN STRICKEN ENROUTE TO S. A.

WINSLOW, Ariz., June 20.—(UP)—A heart attack was blamed today for the death yesterday of Mary E. Runyon, about 70, on a Santa Fe passenger train near Chambers, 80 miles east of here.

SLATE HEARING FOR BLIND SCHOOL HEAD

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 20.—(UP)—Hearing of charges against Joseph P. Kelly, superintendent of the Industrial Home for Adult Blind, will be held in Oakland June 22, the state personnel board announced today.

Kelly was accused by the California State Federation of Women's clubs of incompetency, allowing corruption of morals at the institution and with intoxication. He filed a general denial to the complaint and demanded a public reprimand for his accusers.

Fred B. Wood, legislative counsel and member of the personnel board, will conduct the hearing.

FILE PETITION TO MAKE SLANT DRILLING LEGAL

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 20.—(UP)—Initiative petitions designed to legalize slant drilling for tideland oil and to place county, district and municipal offices under civil service were filed with Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan today.

Submitted by W. M. Kerr, registrar of voters for Los Angeles county, they contained the signatures of 107,661 and 103,152, respectively, registered voters.

A total of 186,378 signatures will be needed to qualify the measures for the November ballot.

The oil drilling initiative would prohibit tideland surface oil drilling but authorized 30-year subsurface leases for slant drilling from upland locations, with the state collecting a royalty of 14.2-7 per cent on the value of the oil or gas produced from the wells.

This type of drilling has been accomplished at Huntington Beach, and the state is collecting royalties from operators there. The initiative would permit the extension of slant drilling to all other state-owned tideland oil pools.

The civil service initiative would require that nearly all county, city and district offices be subject to civil service regulations. Certain exceptions, including those positions exempted by charter provisions, would be permitted.

RATTLESNAKE DEATH BARBER IS HELD SANE

LOS ANGELES, June 20.—(UP)—Dr. Robert S. Jones, who goes on trial Monday charged with drowning his wife after a futile attempt to kill her with rattlesnake venom, was pronounced sane by an alienist today.

The alienist, Dr. Ross Moore, reached his conclusion after an examination during which the 30-year-old barber raised the number of his former wives to seven, and described a weird childhood experience with rattlesnakes.

James originally claimed five former wives. He told a previous alienist he had six. Today, in raising the number of seven, he said most of them had left him after a short married life.

Dr. Moore said James told of being grazed on the forehead by a rattler he was trying to kill with a stick when a boy. He said this gave him an aversion to snakes that was overcome only when his bride insisted he take her to a beach rattlesnake "farm."

Charles H. Hope, indicted with the barber, pleaded guilty yesterday. Both admitted holding one of Mrs. Mary James' bare legs in a box of rattlesnakes, but each blames the other for her drowning.

Two Contracts Are Awarded by State

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 20.—(UP)—Contract for constructing an overhead crossing of the Southern Pacific tracks at Jibboom street, Sacramento, was under award today by the department of public works to Lord & Bishop, Sacramento, for $136,962.60.

The project will straighten out the easterly approach to the "T" street bridge, one of Sacramento's main entrances from the west.

Another contract, totaling $7055, was awarded to Martin Bros. Trucking Co., Long Beach, for surfacing 15.5 miles in Riverside county between Palo Verde and Route 64 near Blythe.

SUGAR GROUP IS HEAVIEST BENEFICIARY

Report Shows One Organization Received Over Million From U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(UP)—Democrats and Republicans sought campaign material today in the report of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace on persons and corporations who received more than $10,000 in AAA benefits.

Submitted to the senate in answer to a resolution by Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R., Mich., the report showed one organization as receiving more than a million dollars in AAA benefits—the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar company, Ltd., which was paid $1,022,037.

The report showed most large benefit payments were made to sugar producers. Second largest beneficiary was the Fajardo Sugar Growers association of Puerto Rico, listed as receiving $961,064. The largest domestic beneficiary was the U. S. Sugar corporation, which got $785,038 for cooperating with the 1934 sugar program on its Florida plantations.

The report showed producers who received more than $10,000 benefits held approximately 0.013 per cent of 1934 contracts and received approximately 2.2 per cent of total benefits.

A supplemental statement showed 55 corporations which, according to 1935 AAA corn-hog program records, operated more than 150 farms each.

Among these were: Mutual Life Insurance Co., 4383; Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., 4137; Prudential Insurance Co., 3155; Travelers Insurance Co., 3155; John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., 3043; and Equitable Life Assurance society, 3256.

The report revealed 3772 producers owning 107,579 farms eligible for participation in the 1935 corn-hog program, and that these producers signed 49,377 contracts. In addition, it said 67,302 of these farms were owned by 111 insurance companies, 179 banks owned 21,447 farms, and 31,491 other owners held the other 18,539 farms.

Other large individual beneficiaries:

Corn-hog (1934): Fontana Farms Co., Inc., Cal., $155,075.

Rice (1935): Sutter Basin Corp., Ltd., and Sutter Improvement Co., Cal., $54,203.

Wheat (1933 and 1934): Sutter Basin Corp., Ltd., and Sutter Basin Improvement Co., Ltd., Cal., $54,605; Arthur H. Wolfson, Calif., $2,695.

CORPORATION TAX MEASURE TO PRESIDENT

that amount of profits which corporations failed to distribute to stockholders.

In the senate, the measure was blocked and a substitute offered which failed to carry out the president's suggestions on the grounds that they would wreck many small businesses and strike at the fundamentals of American business.

The senate substitute would have lowered the house bill's graduated rates up to 41-1/2 per cent and instead would have levied present corporate rates by 2 per cent and topped that off with a 7 per cent flat super tax on undivided profits.

After a two-weeks battle in conference, the house emerged with the best of the bargain and the administration leaders drove it to final approval today.

Provisions of Measure

The measure in its final form provided:

Normal tax on corporations ranging from 8 to 15 per cent on all earnings.

Super tax ranging from 7 to 27 per cent on the amount of undivided income which is not distributed to stockholders.

Subjection of dividends to normal income tax rates in the hands of stockholders.

An optional arrangement designed to lessen the penalty on undivided earnings for corporations with profits of under $50,000.

An 80 per cent windfall tax to recover levies on processors who failed to pay or impounded taxes under the new invalidated AA.

Tightening of sections 102 and 361 of the present revenue laws to make the penalty tax of 25 to 35 per cent on retention of "unreasonable" profits more easily applicable and to make more difficult tax evasion through personal holding companies.

A lowering from 90 to 85 per cent of the tax exemption now granted to inter-corporate dividends. These dividends will be subject to the super tax rates.

Imposition of import excise taxes on certain vegetable oils.

A provision that banks, insurance companies and concerns under contract not to pay dividends until obligations have been liquidated, shall be subject to a flat 15 per cent tax and exempted from the super tax.

An attorney, with whom she had been associated lately, carried her to a bed where she died before an inhalator squad arrived, the maid said. A physician called by the attorney signed the death certificate.

Records indicate, detective said, that the baroness made two wills. One named her old friend and legal advisor, John Dryer, as administrator. The second, named another lawyer administrator.

The baroness' famous jewels were said to be in a safety deposit box.

The aged noblewoman lived a secluded life in an old mansion in a once fashionable district. She had many friends, several of whom said she promised to bequeath them some of the jewels.

In his third start against the Giants this season, "Dizzy" toyed with the Terrymen yesterday to win his 13th victory of the season, 7 to 5. In St. Louis last trip the Giants bowed to "Dizzy" on Friday and again on Sunday when Dizzy insisted on taking Brother Paul's turn in the box because the latter had a sore arm.

CALL NEW MEET AIMED TO END CITRUS STRIKE

Raya and others, said they would not end the strike unless they did get the flat salary of $3.30.

"It is obvious that an income like that cannot permit of a flat hourly wage scale," Commissioner Fitzgerald declared, and called the noon meeting for Monday afternoon at 2 p. m. in the office of Maxwell Burke, Pacific building, Santa Ana.

Will Be Reasonable
Dr. Deming said he would be "reasonable" about any "reasonable demands" but could neither pay flat salary nor recognize the union. A deadlock resulted.

In the second place, peace officers report that hundreds of Mexicans "who don't even know what the strike is about" are willing to go back to work at once, and only a few "scattered" union-minded Mexicans are holding out against ending the strike.

Stuart Strathman, packing house representative, said today: "The packing houses absolutely will not recognize any union nor will officials meet to arbitrate. However, we are willing to meet with Commissioner Fitzgerald at any time, to present our viewpoint, which is, of course, based upon our ability to pay."

"Complaints regarding the required payment for transportation to and from work, even though the pickers may not obtain the transportation, were dug up from 'way back last November, to be used as a 'handle' by agitators. The transportation question has been settled and no longer are any pickers required to pay for transportation they do not get. The bonus is a necessary part of citrus picking, as many of the Mexicans need that bonus at the end of the season, after their regular wages are spent."

Claim Bonus Necessary
It was also said the bonus is necessary to keep sufficient workers here to harvest the off-bloom crop, who otherwise would depart for other sections of the state to work, leaving the orchardists stranded. Lucio, stating he was unofficially representing only the Mexicans who have not been naturalized, reiterated his complaint that the bonus system and even the transportation system was being made a "racket" by pickling foremen.

Except for picketing in various parts of the county and arrest of Francisco Gomez, 35, of Orange and Del Rey, this morning on 101 highway at Katella road, north of Anaheim, as an alleged picketer, who was riding about with four companions, urging pickers to quit everything was quiet today. Gomez was held by sheriff's deputies and arrested by State Highway Patrolman Lloyd Groover, charged with having no identification, no change of address on his operator's license and failing to have signed registers. He was to be arraigned in Justice Charles Kuchler court, Anaheim, today. Pete Inda, 24, Brea, arrested yesterday for using fictitious license plates, was sent to jail for 30 days.

Continue County Patrol
"The patrol throughout the county will continue until things are in a settled condition again," Sheriff Logan Jackson said today. "We received two emergency calls from Orange late yesterday, asking investigations, but otherwise all is quiet. Officer Sanford reported a truck load of Mexicans in the district, armed with knives, but they had disappeared."

William Rohrs reported from El Modena and La Palma that the strikers wish to return to work but most of the jobs are filled by Mexicans, many have announced intention of returning to work Monday. It was generally estimated that with several hundred school boys and others on the jobs, the strike would be over by Tuesday with the exception of that part "carried on by those who insist on union recognition."

Copy of a petition circulated among "all orange pickers" yesterday, and reaching District Attorney William Menton today, explained the strike demands and briefed recent strike activities in this county. "We demand 71-2 cents per box and acknowledgment of the union," the petition said. "Nine strikers of the most militant, seven men and two women, have been arrested and put in jail."

"Two were tried and sentenced to 30 days in jail. The International Labor Defense has put up $6500 of bail in the present strike movement of the workers in the agricultural workers of Venice, harvesting in El Monte. The International Labor Defense sustains and gives aid to all the militant strikers who are actually in the Orange county strike."

It declared the International Labor Defense "furnishes legal aid and attorneys; warns all organizations of labor resistance, religious organizations, to help these striking workers; sends food and clothing to strikers. It warned against pleas of guilty by arrested strikers, and told workers who were arrested never to give information to officers, 'except your name.'"

PHANTOM JUDGE PESIDES, SETTLES FOUR LAW SUITS

REASON WAS the phantom judge who presided over a remarkable "trial" in superior court here this week, as two brothers, Dan and Arthur Buchheim, settled four lawsuits and the friendly disagreement of 30 years standing, without a court decree.

A few hours of a novel court hearing, and amicable discussion of their differences, with their attorneys cooperating in the peace-making, brought the brothers together in a settlement of their various litigations and a division of the 16-acre orange grove near Tustin, which has been the source of their disagreement.

Impromptu Agreement
The astounding arrangement was entirely impromptu, the result of an inadvertence in arranging trial of one of the lawsuits. It was scheduled Thursday before Judge H. G. Ames but he unexpectedly called to San Diego. The case was transferred to Judge G. K. Scovell's department, but through an oversight he was not notified, and was absent.

The suit to be heard was an action by Mrs. Denna S. Buchheim, wife of Dan, to quiet title to her half interest in the orange grove, and prevent a sheriff's sale.

The sheriff's sale was threatened because of a judgment against Dan and previously obtained against Dan. When he sought to levy against Dan's supposed interest in the ranch, it developed that some years ago, Dan had transferred his interest to his wife.

Another suit pending was one to partition the property, and still a fourth was in prospect, to determine the rights of the brothers in various personal property.

Brothers Friendly
While the two brothers were entirely friendly, they had not been able to agree upon accountings during their association, extending back to 1906.

Finding there was no judge to hear the case, the litigants and their attorneys, B. Z. McKinnley for Mrs. Denna Buchheim, and U. S. Fitzgerald, of Los Angeles, for Arthur, decided to call their witnesses to the stand informally and hear their testimony, and try to decide the matter without a judge. Attorney Fitzgerald is a half-brother to both Buchheims.

Aaron Buchheim, of San Juan Capistrano, their nephew, was to decide anything upon which they could not agree.

So they proceeded, the witnesses were called and examined by the attorneys, with the judge's seat vacant. Agreement was made upon various points as the testimony proceeded.

From 2 until 5:10 p. m. the hearing proceeded. Then all parties adjourned to McKinnley's office, where they worked until 9 p. m. drawing up agreements, settling not only the case at hand, but also the preceding case upon the judgment, the suit for partition, and the prospective suit over personal property. The agreements covered everything, and were capped by the drawing of deeds dividing the ranch between the brothers.

Arthur lives at Ventura, Dan at Tustin.

Local court records hold no example of so unique a procedure.

YOUTH JAILED FOR MAKING CAMP FIRE

Frank Larson, 19-year-old Long Beach youth, was sentenced to 30 days in jail in the court of Judge A. W. Swayze yesterday when he appeared for a violation of a state fire ordinance. Larson, who stated he did not know he was breaking a law, made a camp fire in Silverado canyon, in a stretch of dry brush. Larson, a meat cutter, was arrested by Harvey E. French, Robert M. Hendrickson, 25, of Corona, was fined $10 by Judge Swayze when he pled guilty to a charge of throwing a lighted cigaret from a moving car in the Santa Ana canyon the day previous. He was arrested by State Forest ranger, Joe Scherman.

ALAMEDA AIR BASE BILL GIVEN CHANCE

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(UP)—The Alameda naval air base bill today was conceded an even chance of final approval before the expected adjournment of congress tonight.

The measure, authorizing creation of a huge naval air base at Alameda, Cal., is pending in the senate. Minor differences in the measure as approved by house and senate must be ironed out before it can be sent to President Roosevelt for final signature.

Proponents of the bill said they expected to adjust the differences, but whether they would be able to call it up for senate action in the last-minute rush before adjournment remained problematical.

by Superior Judge Lyle T. Jacks before whom he was arraigned yesterday. They will examine him before Thursday when their report is due.

Members of the board are Dr. Eugene W. Mullins, superintendent of the Agnew state hospital for the insane; Dr. Joseph Pohlman, and Dr. Frank Shesby, member of the state lunacy commission.

Walter's insanity plea was entered by Public Defender Gerald Kenny over the strenuous objections of Walter, who said:

"I don't want a plea of insanity. I plead guilty as charged."

Kenny ignored his client.

"It is this man's constitutional right," he said, "to have a court and jury determine his sanity. I'm not going to have this man railroaded to San Quentin. We had an elephant shot here Thursday. Even a 24-hour reprieve before it was shot. Why shouldn't a human being have the same right?"

The Assistant District Attorney John J. McMahon and members of the police inspectors bureau joined Walter in his protest against Kenny's action.

"There is absolutely no reason for an insanity plea," McMahon said. "The crime is the only fact before the court. The defendant has confessed in full detail. He wants to go to San Quentin and I don't see why the public defender or anyone else should interfere. In the interest of justice, let's get this case over with as quickly as possible."

Judge Jacks ruled, however, that with a human life at stake, he had no alternative but to order a sanity hearing.

Kenny said that if alienists and a jury found Walter sane he would put no further obstacles in the path of the district attorney's office.

LOS ANGELES, June 20.—President Robert Gordon Sproul declared "the overreaching enthusiasm of extremists" in an address to 1229 graduating seniors at the University of California at Los Angeles commencement exercises in Hollywood Bowl yesterday afternoon.

Sproul said the "bombs of revolutionists" aren't dangerous in themselves but only as they "call out the fire department of reaction."

"Our nation faces menacing issues. If the people are not to fall prey to the demagogues, the charlatans, the fanatics and the witch-burners, we must have sound and courageous leaders. That responsibility is yours. Stir yourself in action about your country's affairs."

His death was the twenty-seventh in the county this year.

Funeral services, with the Rev. Frank Lindgren officiating, will be conducted at Brown and Wagner's chapel Monday at 2 p. m. with interment at Westminster Memorial cemetery.

CHAIN STORE BILL BECOMES LAW TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(UP)—The Robinson-Patman chain store bill became law today when President Roosevelt affixed his signature to the measure.

The bill is designed to prevent price discrimination between purchasers of like quantity and quality of goods from a manufacturer and for this reason has been construed as aiding the independent merchant as against the "chain stores."

In addition the bill carries provisions designed to prevent false brokerage or false advertising allowances.

The measure is the result of the house inquiry into activities of the American Retail Federation and into the chain store setup.

The bill was pushed in the senate by Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson and in the house by Rep. Wright Patman, D., Texas.

BOURBONS HAVE $2,000,000 IN CAMPAIGN FUND

"There is much sentiment in New York," he added, "for Gov. Lehman to run for re-election. I don't mean just political sentiment. There is sentiment among all classes."

Farley said he had published a notice in the postal bulletin, instructing postmasters to disregard any solicitations for campaign funds.

"I have never solicited money from a postmaster, and I never will," he said. "But there are some over-zealous fellows who will do it. We are trying to stop it. I do expect, though, that we will raise from $750,000 to $1,000,000 through the 'nominators' arrangement under which persons will pay $1 to assemble and hear the president's acceptance speech."

The name of John N. Garner will be the only one presented here for the vice presidency, Farley said, ending rumors that President Roosevelt would have a new running mate this fall.

"What states are going to cause you the hardest battle?" Farley was asked.

"The battle will center in every state," he replied.

"Even the prairie states?" some one asked, recalling Farley's remark that Gov. Alf M. Landon comes from "a typical prairie state."

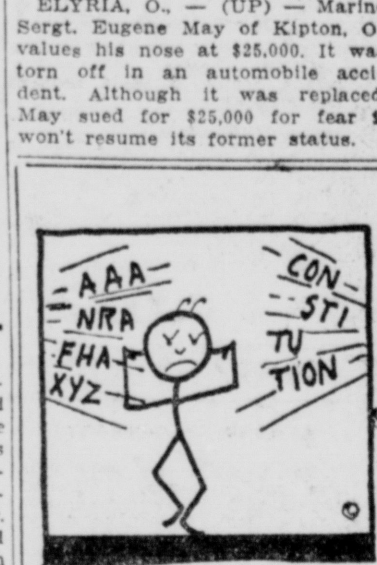

"The prairie section is a splendid country," Farley answered.

"How do you know?"

"I've been out there and seen it."

DEATH NOTICES

A WORD OF COMFORT

A fish begins to die when it is taken out of water, removed from its natural environment and separated from the source of its sustenance.
In the same way, the human soul, without prayer, is robbed of the opportunity to receive the strength it needs for healthful living.
Reach out for what God will give you through communion with Him, in your darkest hours, pray for courage and strength. He will come and you will be able to go bravely on toward the day of complete satisfaction.

Brushing up on horsemanship, scholastic standing and putting on their best smiles, these California girls are out to win honors as "California's Finest Outdoor Girl," at the annual Salinas Rodeo. With the title goes a trip to Alaska and representatives are named from almost every county in the State. Left to right: Lucille Gribbel, Santa Cruz; Jean Stewart, Monterey; Joan Cordova, Gilroy; Phyllis Handley, Gonzales; Margaret Galsford, King City; Jean Koepke, Watsonville; Winifred McCargan, mascot; Virginia Smith, Hollister, and Maxine Brown, Salinas, "hostess."

WIRE HAired FOX TERRIER CHAMPION 'POSSUM HUNTER

About three weeks ago a dilapidated, tough looking little wire haired fox terrier was brought to Mrs. T. J. Neal, 730 Cypress street, by a man who was faced with the necessity of getting rid of her.

"She's the quail huntin'est dog in the country," the man informed Mrs. Neal. "Her name is Snow Ball."

Snow Ball was none too impressive at first sight, however, Mrs. Neal learned that she had a pedigree beyond reproach. Today, Mrs. Neal is convinced that Snow Ball has a trace of Southern blood in her veins.

When Snow Ball first arrived at the Neal home, it was quite apparent she was expecting adaption to the family. Nine days ago, true to expectations, four little Snow Balls arrived in the world. Mother Snow Ball, of course, took it upon herself to see that her offspring were well provided for.

There weren't any quail in the vicinity of the Neal home, and Mrs. Snow Ball was beginning to wag her tail in desperation when providence took a hand in the affairs of the Snow Ball family.

Thursday morning, when Mrs. Neal paid her usual visit to the Snow Ball family, she found a very dead 'possum surrounded by the four little Snow Balls and their mother.

"My, my, such persistency," Mrs. Neal remarked, if she had only known.

This morning, believe it or not, Mrs. Neal for the third consecutive morning found a 'possum in the Snow Ball abode.

That is why Mrs. Neal believes Snow Ball has southern blood in her veins.

adviser, spoke of the class in nothing but the highest terms of praise. "They have met every challenge set to it—more than any other class, and always with a smile." He then reviewed the activities of the class. "We do not believe that any class that comes will have better young people." This is the first class to receive diplomas since Mr. Crawford became principal.

The commencement exercises yesterday marked the close of a highly successful scholastic career. Thirteen of the graduates have been elected to life membership in the California Scholastic Federation; 79 finished with perfect citizenship records; and 79 more achieved records of worthy citizenship (an average of 95 or more).

Honor Graduates
The graduates who made the C.S.F. are Ruth Budd, June Clark, Catherine Cooper, Catherine Eklund, William Flood, Ruth and LaVonne Franson, Audrey Grannas, Mary Henderson, Kathleen Maddock, James Maynard, Virginia Pritchard and Robert Speed.

Principal Crawford, on behalf of the Alpha club, presented for the first time the Alpha honorary award to Robert Wilde and Ruth Franson for being the most representative boy and girl of the graduating class. This is to be made a yearly presentation. It was revealed, given to the best boy and girl of the class but to the most representative who were selected by classmates.

The award of $5 was given on the basis of scholarship, activities, catholicity of interest, and citizenship. Wilde was former student body president and president of the senior class. Miss Franson was former secretary of the student body. Both have been active in student affairs.

Mrs. Golden Weston presented graduating members of the evening high school for diplomas. Yesterday's addition of 15 evening high school graduates brought the total number of night school graduates to 41. The ages of yesterday's diploma winners covered a span of 49 years.

In the absence of President George Wells, of the board of education, M. B. Youel, member of the board presented the diplomas to the graduates. Class President Robert Wilde accepted the diplomas on behalf of the class.

Previous to the invocation given by the Rev. A. E. Kelly, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, the high school orchestra offered an overture. After the invocation, the boys' and girls' glee clubs sang two numbers.

Three members of the class of graduates were children of school officials. They were Erwin Youel, son of M. B. Youel, board member.

In presenting the class of 1936 for diplomas, Principal Lynn H. Crawford, who also has served as

COURT CONTEST FILED TODAY IN BEACH BALLOT

Edward I. Moore, of Newport Beach, today filed a court contest of Charles H. Way's recent election as school trustee in Newport Beach elementary district. Moore claims that he was the real winner in the election by virtue of a write-in vote given him under several variations of his name.

The election board had refused to count all the Moore votes as intended for one candidate, and split the total into several totals, counting 75 for Edward I. Moore, 41 for E. I. Moore, and 26 for the name of Moore with various other initials. Charles H. Way, whose name was printed on the ballot, received 95 votes.

Moore claims that the total of 136 votes given the Moores all were meant for him, and would have given him a margin over Way.

The suit today was filed for Moore by Attorney B. Z. McKinney, of West and McKinney, Santa Ana. Special hearing of the contest has been set for July 2 before Judge H. G. Ames.

Under the law governing this type of court proceeding, the sheriff will be required to serve citation upon Way to appear at the hearing, when the count of ballots must be made in the presence of both candidates.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

— News Behind the News —

BY PAUL MALLON
Copyright, 1936, by Paul Mallon
PLURALITY
WASHINGTON, June 20.—What the mild-mannered Chairman Doughton really said about the news leaks from his secret tax conference was that "some damned sounder" among his colleagues was giving out the news. He was mistaken. He should have used the plural.

It will be denied, of course, but only two of the conferees liked the idea of drawing the shades and barring the door for the rewriting of the tax bill. Even those two probably do not like it, but they are the only two who have kept their lips entirely sealed.

The others generally have rebelled, or the record, if not on, the rule requires secrecy, but there are some things bigger than rules in the opinion of many self-respecting congressmen. One is public interest.

TACTICS
The strategy of handling the difficult bill, of course, was to get representatives of the house and senate into a smoke-filled room for the purpose of rewriting the most important parts. Then, at the last minute, with adjournment of congress at hand, the newly changed bill could be rushed forward through the hush houses. No wide-spread opposition could get started. No opportunity for reflection would be given.

The explosion of Mr. Doughton came because the news had leaked out that he had compromised on the house corporation tax provisions.

The reason that he was justly angry was that those who favored the house provision naturally de-luged him with protests.

It is true that congressional conferences are generally on a basis of barter and trade of one section of a bill against another. Leaks often break up the deals. However, taxpayers will hardly be impressed with that possibility.

Within an hour after Mr. Doughton had read the riot act to his comrades in secret session, the news of all that had occurred in that session was published, even including details of the riot act.

JUXTAPosition
Senator Copeland probably had more reasons for walking out on the Democratic national convention than Al Smith, who he did not choose to mention them.

About 24 hours after Mr. Copeland left out the news, President Roosevelt sent to the senate the names of two New York judges. The proper sequence of these two events should be reversed if you want to get the right extent of Senator Copeland's agitation. That is, he is supposed to have been informed that the nominations were coming next day, and he also knew that they were Farley-Wagner-Tamm appointees, not his.

STRENGTH
It is nothing new for Senator Copeland to be surprised with short advance notice of New York appointments. His last previous surprise was the appointment of Senator Wagner's brother to an important New York post.

The estrangement of Senator Copeland and Postmaster General Farley really dates back to the time when Mr. Farley wanted to oppose Copeland's campaign for re-election. Mr. Farley speaks freely in press conferences. In one of these he indicated that he would like to get rid of Copeland but that the good doctor had been giving medical advice to so many mothers and others in New York for so long, it would probably be unwise to oppose him.

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker
MIXTURE
It is old news that "Bob" Wagner was assigned the task of writing the 1936 Democratic platform. But it's not so well known that President Roosevelt himself is cutting the tails of every comma. He's rewriting what Mr. Wagner writes.

Mr. Roosevelt recently scanned the tentative draft through magnifying glasses. Although he has not given a final okay, the platform commits the party to no sharp move to the left or to the right. To have swerved in either direction would have been an admission that all has not been well. It praises past policies and promises a continuation. It headlines such practical and homey benefits as home insurance, slum clearance, health insurance.

It's more of a broad-and-butler document than the 1932 platform was. It skirts the charge that FDR broke faith with Chicago resolutions by citing the unanticipated and unprecedented conditions which intervened between his nomination and inauguration. It's a mixture of alibi and halloo!

QUERY
The only squabble in Philadelphia will center on the platform. Though the fixers may keep it out of the headlines, conservative Democrats will battle for a promise to glorify gold, to headlining economy, to cut down on spending, to balance the budget.

Senator Glass of Virginia will head the fight as a member of the resolutions committee, although he doesn't anticipate a clear-cut victory. But he and several others will strive to commit FDR to old-fashioned Democratic policies. They will be defeated in committee by a four-to-one vote, according to the present count. The political dice are loaded against them.

Whether they will carry their fight to the convention floor will be the one big story of the convention. At present they are in a mood to submit a minority report and let the delegates hear the bad news. But they're loyal partisans, and the odds are that they will submit to White House suggestions to trust in FDR's good intentions. They'll probably growl but not go to bat.

LOYALTY
The lovely Mr. Glass gave an inkling of conservative Democratic attitude in a cloakroom conversation a few days ago. He was fuming over certain colleagues' votes on the ground that they were based on a strained sense of party loyalty.

"It's queer what some men will do for the party's sake," groaned the high-minded Virginian. Then a New Dealer took him to task. "All right, Carter," he said, "you're the last one to kick at party loyalty. Let me ask you something. Suppose that you and Senator Byrd, who hate the New Deal, stumped the state of Virginia against Roosevelt. What would happen in November?" Mr. Glass guessed, modestly, that they could carry the Old Dominion against FDR.

"Well, then," continued his inquisitor, "what right have you to criticize the President's supporters in the senate? You're not consistent." Senator Glass thought it over. Then he rose up to his full five-foot-two. "What would you have me do?" he asked. "Join Van Hasting's party?" Stripped, these last previous, sentimental Democrats have no acceptable alternative to Roosevelt, and so they'll stick by the ship and skipper, even though they sink.

RUNAWAY BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ON her wedding day MARCIA CUNNINGHAM overhears her fiancé, BOB HASKELL, telling one of the bridesmaids that he has not but can't afford to marry her. Marcia lets them know she has overheard the conversation, then rushes away. She asks her friend, WENDY ANDREWS, to break the news to her parents that the wedding is off.

The tickets for the honeymoon trip to France are in Marcia's purse. Impulsively, she decides to sail alone. A young man who is a stranger helps her get on the ship just before the gangplank is raised.

Next day she meets him again. He is PHILIP KIRKBY, an engineer recently returned from South America. The last night of the voyage they are together on the deck when a radiogram comes for Phil.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

PHIL said gaily, "Camilla sends her love and says she will meet me at Cherbourg in the morning. That, from Camilla, is something special." He put away the radiogram that he had just received.

But he went on talking about the Pampas.

"I hope you marry Camilla in Paris and invite me to the wedding," Marcia said. "I have a whole trousseau. After all, I ought to go to one wedding."

"You could have," Phil reminded her evenly.

"The terms weren't right. His heart had compartments, and I wanted a lease to all of it." Instantly she was sorry for her confession. She did not want to discuss Bob with anyone—Bob who might have grown to love her in time—Bob who had asked her to be his wife instead of the half dozen other girls. Then she remembered that she probably had more money than the other girls!

Phil was saying things about the bachelors' quarters in the mountains and the shacks where the engineers who had wives with them lived—how much gayer and happier they were. She could see the tall boy at her side, striding up a hill at night, looking a little hungrily at the shacks that were homes.

Now with Bob—Bob hadn't wanted a home. Just a house for parties. A house located some place where it was accessible to people. "How will anyone ever find us?" he had asked when she had first shown him the long, low clapboard house in Connecticut. "Honey, just because we are being married doesn't mean that we are going into seclusion."

SHE had said nothing then about the intimacy of winter nights when the wood fires burned and the snow fell softly or madly—which did it matter?—on the glass windows that made half the great living room. She had not reminded him of the sweetness of the smell of honeysuckle and new roses in the spring, the mystery that fireflies carried in their yellow lamps across the fields in June and July and August. Some day, she had been sure, Bob would love the peace of the country, too. Now, watching Phil, Marcia knew that he was her kind of person. Her kind of person, but she loved Bob! Loved him so that the mere thought of his name was a tiny, poignant stab in her heart.

"How about a house on Long Island, if we must have four walls of our own and a plot of grass, my pet?" Bob had asked. "Say, at Ayoset. Then we'll be close to the club and polo and golf and dances. We can come into town for the winter."

Marcia cried, "Bob!" To conceal the tumult within she spoke lightly. "Imagine seeing you in Paris!"

In the end, they had compromised on the house in Connecticut and the apartment in town for the winter.

When she parted from Phil, Marcia held out her hand. "I hope you marry your girl and I hope I see you both in Paris. I'm getting off at Southampton, but I'll be at the Continental in a week or two."

"Camilla's there now and I'm checking in, too," he said. "I'll be seeing you!"

She did not see him in the morning although she was on deck when the passengers left the boat at 10 o'clock to take the tender that would carry them to the boat train. She stood by the railing, watching the little boat go away into a gay morning, advancing steadily among the fishing tugs with their battered sails of red and blue and yellow.

Phil was on that boat, and a girl named Camilla would meet him when he reached the low green coast. Odd, Marcia mused, that she didn't know how Camilla looked. She hoped that the other girl wouldn't bring her Austrian count to the boat. That would be unkind. Almost, Marcia could see the narrowing of the blue eyes, the tightening of the muscles in a lean, tanned face. Phil would say little. He would be sanctified to some woman—but he would love a woman, quite probably, who did not seek sanctuary. Life was that way.

There was no letter from Bob, though. She found a message from her father representative of her father's firm, and because she was lonely, she called him at once. He was elderly, staid. She promised to have tea with him in the lounge at 5.

It seemed to Marcia that she had been saying pleasant nothing for a long time when she spied Phil, a familiar, dark, roughish head across the room. Why the sight of that head, bent attentively to a girl in a white dress and green hat, should make her oddly restless, Marcia did not know. Maybe because they had youth, love, happiness, and she was left out. There was another man at the table—a man in a uniform. The Austrian officer had been included this time.

Phil saw Marcia and arose to come to her immediately.

"Marcia! You did come! This is grand!" His slow voice was warm and cordial. He took Marcia and her elderly escort back to his table.

CAMILLA held out a slim hand. "I heard you were coming. We'll all have fun together. You need a good time. You're pale. I'm always that way after London—it's like going to school. This is Jimmy." She presented the Austrian count who bowed deeply and murmured that he was charmed. "He's with the Austrian legation and he has 27 medals. But he doesn't wear them."

Jimmy excused himself in a little while and the bank representative went on to a conference.

Camilla gave a deep, relieved sigh, and put her chin in her hands. Her eyes were blue, not so deep, not so swift as Phil's blue. Her hair was golden, brittle instead of soft, her mouth was generous and her smile was sincere. She was a little restless—watching to see what would happen next, going on to the next scene before the curtain had fallen on the present one, Marcia decided.

The orchestra was playing a song and Marcia began to talk gaily. She had been in so many such places with Bob—rooms where the lights were low, the music soft, and there was the tinkle of ice in glasses, bowls of buttered popcorn and other bowls of small pretzels, and waiters passing trays of canapés. It was dusk outside, cool and blue. Night would bring synthetic brilliance any moment. Nights were meant to be gay when one was young, in Paris—but Bob wasn't here.

"What are you doing tonight?" Camilla asked. "We're having dinner at the Ritz and wasting time, here, there and yonder. Why don't you join us? Count Von Wormstedt will be along."

Phil was urging Marcia to come along, too. She smiled mistily because they were being kind and she was lonesome. After all, if there was to be another in the party she wouldn't be intruding—she who had never in all her life been without a waiting stageline.

"You've saved my life," she answered. "Of course I'll come. What time?"

She glanced up, straight into the eyes of a young man a waiter was ushering to their table.

"Bob!" she cried, and a dimple at the corner of her lips flashed provocatively. To conceal the tumult within she spoke lightly, "Imagine seeing you in Paris!"

ACCORDING to science, the present-day automobile is far from perfect when it comes to getting energy from fuel. About 40 per cent of the fuel energy is used in cooling water, alone. Transmission and engine friction use up about 12 per cent; some 20 per cent is lost through incompletely burned fuel, and another 20 per cent is lost through still other causes.

JIMMY FIDLER in

HOLLYWOOD. — Idle chatter: Amusing to see Robert Montgomery, screen sophisticate that he is, in track suit practicing sprint starts and dashes. A prep school runner, he chooses that way to cling to physical fitness. Add good fellows: Guy Kibbee, Peas from the same pod: Claire Trevor in black wig for "Human Cargo," and Alice Brady 16 years ago. Marlene Dietrich's velvety screen voice is a stage trick, but a good one. Her real life voice is equal in sharpness to yours and mine. Far as I know, Lionel Barrymore has never given a bad performance. Candidate for trimmest torso: Norma Shearer. Joan Crawford rarely appears in public without TWO men, her husband, Franchot Tone, and another, one to sit on each side of her. Protection? My, my, how long has it been since we had a Jean Harlow front page story? Alliterative picture title: "Bullets and Ballots." Across the street from M-G-M studio, and unremoving, fading sign proclaims: ELEVEN MILES TO THE LOMA TODD'S SIDEWALK CAFE. Cesar Romero says all Hollywood is divided into three groups — "the was-ers, the is-es, and the may-be-es." Morning mail note from one Jack McCauley: "Hollywood, where you live in clover and where you die."

There is always a thrill to return to the old home town tagged with success. It must have been a redoubled kick for George MacDonald, newly wed to Jean Parker, to revisit the Montezuma (Calif.) school of his boyhood days. He and Jean stopped there on their honeymoon, and nothing would do but what George saunter through the corridors of his childhood. He was a school hero at once, but not for long. Jean mingled with the boys and in a jiffy her husband was all but forgotten. A minor tragedy, for it heralded what may happen to MacDonald, husband of a movie star, in years to come. Richard Arien received a bill for $50 through the mails recently, and there is a story attached which indicates how the stars are sometimes victims of smart promoters. Dick returned from a location trip with a collie, Jobyna Ralston Arien threw up her hands; there were already enough dogs around the house, she said. But Arien told her that the chap who gave him the collie was so insistent that refusal to accept would have been embarrassing. A few days later, Arien received a bill for $50 for one collie, and the writer said: "You promised to send me a check when you returned to Los Angeles." Dick did more than I would have done; he sent the man $25.

Out on a location set the other day, the thermometer climbed to above 90, and there wasn't a breeze stirring. Jeanette MacDonald, director W. S. Van Dyke and members of a film unit were squashed in their own perspiration. "It gets so hot out here," Van Dyke said to Jeanette, "that squirrels faint and fall out of trees." "Pooh," was the ladylike response. Hardly had she uttered the exclamation when there was a "pop," and 10 feet away lay a squirrel. Ten minutes later, it happened again, and Miss MacDonald's uneasiness increased. Suddenly a tree limb cracked, and a property man tumbled to the ground. That ended Van Dyke's little joke; the squirrels were stuffed, and Jeanette was fit to be.

MYSTERY FILM
OPENS TUESDAY AT WEST COAST

One of the best programs that has shown at the Fox West Coast theater has been arranged by Manager Lester J. Fountain for three days beginning next Tuesday. A mystery, "The Case Against Mrs. Ames," starring Madeleine Carroll and George Brent, will be augmented with "Bunker Bean," featuring Owen Davis, Jr., and Louise Latimer. "The Case Against Mrs. Ames" is a courtroom melodrama of murder, scheming lawyers, hounding news-hawks and misleading clues which sets a new high in scenario building. Interest in an absorbing tale is not halted by moments of grim humor which interrupts scenes of stirring action. A lovely widow, charged with her husband's murder, becomes her own counsel and is cleared despite the withering interrogation of the district attorney's office and the badgering of a domineering mother-in-law. Madeleine Carroll brings beauty, charm and naturalness to a role of many moods. George Brent surprises with an amazing versatility as the widow's prosecutor.

"Bunker Bean," the Harry Leon Wilson story has delighted American fancy for more than a score of years. First published in 1912, the novel has since been sufficiently popular to run into three subsequent editions, the latest having reached the bookstands in 1935.

NEIGHBORS
(By Constance Entwistle Hoar in The Lantern)

I walked in the cool of the garden,
I hid myself in its shade;
For God, too, walked in the garden,
And I was afraid.
Beyond the wall of the garden
My neighbor strode alone,
Angry with me, not knowing
I longed to atone.
I crept from out of the shadows,
I lifted the latch of his gate;
We talked till the round moon told us
The hour was late.
Today I walked in the garden—
How good was its cool, deep shade!
Though God still walked in my garden,
I was not afraid.

motives are based on human nature, the story needed little modernizing in its screen treatment. It comes to motion picture houses as a romantic comedy of today, the community being any American metropolis. The leading roles were awarded to Owen Davis, Jr., and Louise Latimer, both of whom are on the contract roster of RKO radio.

"THE PRINCESS COMES ACROSS"
HERE THURSDAY

"Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray have done it again," says Lester J. Fountain, manager of the Fox Broadway theater who has booked "The Princess Comes Across" to open at the Broadway on Thursday of next week for three days. The pair, who starred as the ideal screen sweethearts in "Hands Across the Table" reveal the fact that their success in the first teaming was no accident.

"Counterfeit," with Chester Morris and Margot Grahame and Marian Marsh has been signed for the other half of the double bill. The program also includes a cartoon, "Shanghaied Shipmates," and a Fox newswheel.

In "The Princess Comes Across," the passengers on a transatlantic liner furnish the action of an excellently cast and directed mystery film. A notorious murderer, a chorus girl masquerading as a Swedish princess and the concertina-playing leader of a band are the leading protagonists. While the plot is somewhat confusing at times, the suspense and excitement are so well sustained that the climax comes as a complete surprise. Carole Lombard's characterization of the girl afraid of detection is excellent, while Fred MacMurray and Allison Skipworth give their usual capable assistance. The photography is exceptionally fine. It is a picture for adults and young people.

"Counterfeit" is a powerful, timely dramatization of the undercover activities of the federal T-men, guardians of the U. S. treasury. Chester Morris, rising to new heights of ability, enacts the role of a T-man assigned to ferret out the ringleader of a band of counterfeiters flooding the country with bogus money. He gains the confidence of Margot Grahame, sweetheart of Lloyd Nolan, head of the ring, and is soon accepted as a member of the outlaw crew. His task is uncomfortably complicated when he falls in love with the lovely Marian Marsh, Margot's sister, who is innocently involved in the counterfeiting activities. In a whirlwind climax, T-men and gunmen come to grips in a hair-raising battle, with the law emerging the victor.

KAY FRANCIS IN
"WHITE ANGEL"
COMING SOON

"White Angel," one of the outstanding pictures of the year, with the lovely Kay Francis cast in the title role, has been engaged by Manager Lester J. Fountain for a four-day run beginning Sunday, June 23, with "Educating Father" as the other half of a double bill.

"White Angel" is a worthy successor to "The Story of Louis Pasteur." It grippingly portrays the struggle of Florence Nightingale to overcome Victorian prejudices against freedom of women and scientific advancement. It will appeal particularly to feminine audiences.

Attracted to nursing by hospital scandals unearthed by her father, Charles Croker King, superintendent of London institutions, Miss Francis studies abroad and is mocked when she returns intent upon a nursing career.

Later when distressing conditions in military hospitals in the Crimea are reported, she is permitted to organize a unit for war service. At the front she is hampered by Donald Crisp, army commandant, who resents the intrusion of women. Miss Francis overcomes handicaps and changes the base hospitals from a filthy hole to a sanitary refuge for the sick and wounded. Constantly battling Crisp, Miss Francis works tirelessly and wins public support and recognition from the

"LITTLE REBEL"
AND COMEDY AT
WALKER STATE

Adventure, drama, pathos and the all-embracing love of a little child are combined with sunny songs and spirited dances in "The Little Rebel" with Shirley Temple in the title role, which shows at Walker's State theater tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday.

The beloved starlet of the screen threads her way triumphantly through the stirring conflict and trying times of Civil war days, according to advance notices of the film, aided by a fine supporting cast that includes John Boles as her daddy, Karen Morely as her mother and Jack Holt as a chivalrous Yankee officer who is trying to help the child get into serious trouble himself. Bill Robinson, the famous tap dance artist, also has a prominent role.

One of the highlights of the picture is said to be the scene where the child sits on Lincoln's desk as an appeal is being made for the lives of her father and her friend, and gravely shares an apple with the Great Emancipator.

The second feature on the program is a rousing comedy "Silly Billies" featuring the mirth-quakers Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey. The Indian Territory in 1850 is the setting for this portrayal of hilarious antics by the famous screen comedians. They manage to save a wagon train from the redskins after a series of harrowing experiences. Dorothy Lee has the leading feminine role.

CLARKE GABLE FILM
COMING FRIDAY TO
FOX WEST COAST

Friday of next week will bring to the Fox West Coast theater one of the really big pictures of the year in "San Francisco," a picture that stars Clarke Gable and Jeanette MacDonald. On the same program, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain will be "Big Noise," with Guy Kibbee and Warren Hull in the leading roles. "San Francisco" brings Gable and MacDonald together as a co-starring team for the first time.

The musical romance gives Miss MacDonald her widest scope in vocal numbers in her screen career—a total of nine presentations ranging from a solemn hymn to the most beautiful arias.

Clarke Gable returns to the vigorous type of role that first elevated him to stardom as a blustery Barbary Coast gambling baron who has no faith in anything but his charm over women.

Co-starring with Miss MacDonald and Gable is Spencer Tracy in his most unusual role, that of a priest; a distinguished supporting cast includes Jack Holt, Jessie Ralph, Ted Healy, Shirley Ross, Margaret Irving, Harold Huber, Al Shean, William Ricciardi and Kenneth Harlan.

"San Francisco," is laid in the colorful period of 1905-06, its life of gaiety and song, its Barbary Coast prior to and through the disaster that leveled the famous Golden Gate city 30 years ago.

Depending entirely upon cleverness of direction and competence of cast, "The Big Noise," a simple story, develops into a delightful and amusing picture. Guy Kibbee demonstrates that he is a fine comedian and special mention should be made of the exceptional portrayal by Marie Wilson. Ousted from the presidency of the woolen mills he has founded, Julius Trent proves that honesty is the best policy in the finished product as well as in the financial end of the business.

queen. The picture ends on this note.

Deep dramatic suspense is maintained throughout by this struggle of reactionary forces exemplified by Crisp at the front and Montague Love at home and the forces of progress led by Miss Francis with the support of Henry O'Neill, army doctor, and Ian Hunter, war correspondent.

DAMON RUNYON STRONG BILL
FILM PLAYING OPENS SUNDAY
AT WEST COAST AT BROADWAY

"Three Wise Guys" and "Dracula's Daughter," which opened at the Fox West Coast theater yesterday and which played to large audiences, will come to a close on Monday night, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain. In addition to the two feature pictures the program includes a cartoon, "Battle Royal," and a newswheel.

"The Three Wise Guys" brings to the screen the latest from the pen of Damon Runyon, whose stories have supplied some of the finest picture material in recent years.

Originally published in a national magazine, "The Three Wise Guys" won a place in the "Blue Plate Special," an annual compilation of the best short stories of the year.

The peak of the featured cast is three cornered, with Robert Young and Betty Furness romantically paired, and Bruce Cabot playing the role of the reformed gangster.

It is Miss Furness' first role as leading lady and comes close upon the heels of her outstanding work in "Magnificent Obsession."

"Dracula's Daughter" brings with her to the screen all the 200-year-old superstitions about vampires, which still persist in Central Europe. It is quite possible that these beliefs may circulate around town for the next week or two, because the Universal picture has two themes in an entertaining and often thrilling manner. The love of the man and the girl sets off a vital spark, like the fire of twin stars meeting and fusing in a summer sky. The other element in the drama is the striving of imprisoned men to gain their freedom on parole.

The ever present problem of parole is the basis for the film and one that will appeal to all classes of people, especially the law enforcement officers of the country. A Betty Boop cartoon and a newswheel complete the program.

GLADYS SWARTHOUT
STAR OF MUSICAL
COMING TO STATE

An all-star cast with a Zane Grey western story is the feature attraction that will be shown at Walker's State theater for the last time on the program tonight. It is "Wanderer of the Wasteland."

The cast presents Dean Jagger, Gail Patrick, Buster Crabbe, Edward Ellis, Monte Blue, Trilixie Edganza, Raymond Hutton, Benny Baker, Al St. John and Anna Q. Nilsson. The story concerns the adventures of an innocent man hounded by the law.

Other subjects on the program include "Return Engagement"; "The Miracle Rider," a cartoon and a news reel.

"Rose of the Rancho," a brilliant musical romance starring Gladys Swarthout and John Boles, and "Your Uncle Dudley," a whimsical comedy starring Edward Everett Horton, are booked for the double bill at Walker's State theater next Wednesday and Thursday.

The musical, which presents several song hits and many comedy bits as well as a story of tender romance, has its setting in Monterey shortly after California was admitted to the Union. Horton is supported in the comedy by Lois Wilson, John McGuire and Rosina Lawrence.

Mission Inn Setting Given Wedding Of Prominent Pair

Glenwood Mission Inn, glamorous and lovely, afforded romantic setting this morning for the wedding of two prominent young people of the Southland, Miss Helen Bower of this city, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Bower, 1324 Bush street, and William Rees Mendenhall, son of Dr. W. O. Mendenhall, president of Whittier college, and Mrs. Mendenhall, of the neighboring city.

Succession Of Parties Given For Bride Of Late Summer

This has been a busy week for Miss Harriet Chapin, fiancée of Eugene Anderson of Anaheim, for she has been complimented at two most enjoyable parties. One of these was planned as a shower by her sister, Mrs. Victor Fleming of Anaheim, and the other given by Mrs. Myrtle Anderson and her daughters, the Misses Robbie and Adeline Anderson of Anaheim, mother and sisters of her fiancé.

Mrs. Fleming entertained in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Chapin, 515 East Chestnut street, where the Wednesday night guests enjoyed the quantities of pink and white blossoms arranged in compliment to them.

Bridge was introduced as the evening's diversion, and gifts in household linens rewarded the fortunate winners. Mrs. W. W. Kemp received a luncheon set for first prize; a linen towel went to Mrs. Zelma Polier for second high score and Miss Bethel Dickinson was consoled with a fleecy bath towel.

Gifts in wide variety had been placed for Miss Chapin on a table where a small bride and bridegroom were surrounded by their formally dressed doll wedding attendants. After the gifts had been admired, Mrs. Fleming, assisted by Mrs. Chapin, served an inviting salad course at the card tables, embellished with fruit, linens and clusters of pink and white blossoms.

Her guests included in addition to the prospective bride, Miss Chapin, Mrs. F. M. Anderson and the Misses Robbie and Adeline Anderson, Mrs. Zelma Polier, Mrs. Victoria Hollingsworth, Mrs. Ruth Hutchinson, Miss Dorothy Weatherly, Mrs. V. W. Koehler, Mrs. S. W. Mosberger, Mrs. Evelyn Howell, Miss Vivian Goff, Anaheim; Mrs. W. W. Kemp, Mrs. Anne Littlefield, Long Beach; Miss Blanche Williams, Laguna Beach; Mrs. Margaret Byrd, Burbank; Miss Bethel Dickinson, Mrs. William E. Sylvester, Balboa; Mesdames Charles Bain, Treola Holmes, Stan Allen, Crystal Mallett, J. A. Merigold, Delois Morgan, Jack Boardman, Loman C. Adams, the Misses Lois Courtney, Gladys Marguerite, Jeannette Lewis, Georgina Irvin, Naomi Perench, Santa Ana.

Mrs. Anderson and her daughters received an intimate little guest group in their home, 115 East North street, Anaheim, on the previous evening.

Garden flowers lent charm and color to the home where tables were placed for monopoly. Mrs. Victor Fleming and Eugene Anderson made the two high scores and were rewarded with attractive gifts.

At the close of the evening, the hostesses rearranged the card tables for serving cake and ice cream. Their guests included in addition to Miss Chapin and Mr. Anderson, son of the home, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Fleming, Miss Fannie Standfield, Miss Georgia Ray Fitzgerald and Messrs. Jack Shill, Bob Mott, Phillip Webb and Roy Kirk.

Dinner for Husbands

Worthwhile club members entertained their husbands at a dinner party Thursday night in the Laguna Beach home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Galloway.

An informal program included songs by Mr. Galloway, Mrs. J. H. Mitchell and Mrs. Mary Herring. Impromptu talk were contributed by various members and guests.

In the group were Messrs. and Mesdames C. T. Eisele, L. A. Galloway, Bruce Gibson, A. LaGasse, C. F. Miller, J. H. Mitchell, George McKinnay and son, Munro; J. A. Smiley; Mesdames D. H. Finley, Mary Herring, Ida McKelvie, Anna Nelson, Elizabeth O'Brien, Margaret Wiley, Essie Bruner and Sarah Brown.

The club will resume regular meetings in September.

Two Hostesses Present Smart Bridge Parties

Two successive days this week, Thursday and yesterday were reserved by Mrs. Robert C. Mize and Mrs. Harry C. Westover for a duo of smartly appointed bridge luncheons at which they received guests in the Mize home, 602 South Ross street.

The parties were identical in arrangements, the hostesses maintaining a cool and refreshing color scheme with white sweet peas and green ferns and candles, and serving a cold luncheon menu that was most inviting for these mid-summer hospitalities. Each afternoon while contract was in progress, guests were served chilled grapejuice.

The green and white of luncheon appointments appeared again in tally cards for the afternoon's contract play, and in all decorations of the home, although some color was introduced by charming flower arrangements. These included an especially lovely basket of garden flowers sent by Mrs. Loyal King.

A departure from the color scheme was seen also in prize awards. These were sets of tapers, designed for use with flower frogs, each set in some one color. They were presented as table prizes both afternoons.

Daughters Assist

Yesterday the hostesses had assistance in serving from their young daughters, the Misses Marjorie Mize and Dorothy Westover, very demure and charming in their formal afternoon frocks, Miss Dorothy in pink taffeta, and Miss Marjorie in blue net. Mrs. Westover was gowned in blue chiffon and Mrs. Mize in pink organza, so their colors were in harmony with the frocks of their daughters.

The guest list of Mrs. Mize and Mrs. Westover was an extensive one, including Mesdames J. F. Burke, George S. Briggs, Howard Timmons, Theo Wimbler, Tarver Montgomery, Hugh Lowe, F. E. Farnsworth, Roy Hall, Irwin F. Landis, A. W. Rutan, R. G. Tuttle, J. E. Paul, J. S. Smart, John Wehrly, Leonard G. Swales, W. B. Martin, R. C. Hoiles, T. D. Dunne, B. H. Sharpless, J. A. George, Loyal K. King, Ernest Wimbler, Cassius Paul, Alan Revill, Benjamin J. MacMullen.

Mrs. L. Allen Wallace of Hawthorne and her sisters, Mrs. Mortimer Hocombe and Miss Kate Luxton of Walton-in-Thames, England; Miss Gertrude Montgomery, Miss Louise Montgomery, Miss Reva Hawkins, Mesdames John Lucien Wehrly, Clarence H. Hoiles, Lewis P. Moulton, W. D. Ranney, Orlyn Robertson, W. H. Wright, Horace Leeling, Harold Segerstrom, George K. Scovel, Fred Newcomb, John Backus, Clifford B. Steele, Wendell Finley, Wilbur Barr, C. Mortimer Plum, William Stauffer, Clarence Nisnon, K. H. Sutherland.

Mesdames Harry G. Huffman, Arthur May L. W. Bemis, Howard Rapp, E. T. McFadden, Harold Nelson, Jack Fisher, Hubert B. Nall, Stanley Clem, Milo K. Tedstrom, Allan Vaughn Elston, Eugene Robinson, Max E. Redman, Richard Couden, Charles Swanner, J. B. Tucker, Nat Neff and Paul Ragan.

Mrs. Mendenhall, who attended high school at Westtown school, Westtown, Penn., later studied at Friends University, from where he graduated with high honors. He did graduate work at California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, securing his master's degree in chemical engineering this June. He goes to Niagara Falls with the Du Pont company.

Many Parties

Among those who entertained for the bride-elect in advance of the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Sage of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Straight, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Emory White Jr., Anaheim; Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Franson, Santa Ana, all of whom gave dinners; Mrs. Russell Reagan, Santa Barbara, and Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh, Santa Ana, Mrs. Franson and her daughters, Mrs. La Vonne; Miss Eleanor Davenport, Phyllis Plummer and Mrs. Straight, in the Davenport home in San Dimas; Mrs. Carleton Smith, Santa Ana, and faculty members at McKinley school, all of whom gave teas and showers.

Three special features added to the pleasure experienced last night by feminine members of The Register staff at a party planned by the current "Register" bride, Mrs. Carleton Smith (Miriam Samuelson).

In the first place it was pleasant to be entertained in Mrs. Smith's home, 516 West Fifth street, where her co-workers were interested in seeing in use, some of the many gifts which the hostess had received at her spring wedding. Then there was a reunion with a former member of the group, Miss Constance Cruickshank, down from San Francisco for a vacation visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cruickshank.

Third of the special things of the evening, was a handkerchief shower staged by the group as a surprise to Miss Evelyn Schleber, soon staff at a summer visit in her former home, Bucyrus, Ohio.

Mrs. Smith had planned bridge as additional diversion, and awarded attractive prizes which were won by Mrs. Marah Adams and Mrs. Carl Thrasher. The serving of a late supper for which colorful pottery was called into use, brought the evening to a close. Miss Dorothy Gowdy assisted in rearranging tables and in serving.

Mrs. Smith's guests were the Misses Evelyn Schleber, Constance Cruickshank, Helen Lutz, Rose Allen, Dorothy Gowdy, Mesdames George Risch, John V. Minihan, Carl Thrasher, Paul Gilbert, William Fritcher, Marah Adams and Emmett Elliott.

Youthful Pair Disclose News Of Yuma Rites

Wedding bells rang out May 11 in Yuma, Ariz., for Miss Pauline Winslow and Bruce Harnois, but it was not until this week that definite news of the romantic event was revealed.

Suspecting that the marriage had taken place, guests at a party this week in the L. T. Nielsen home, 509 West Sixth street, disclosed their suspicions with the result that informal announcement of the spring wedding was made.

The wedding of Miss Winslow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Winslow, 1713 South Van Ness avenue, and Mr. Harnois, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Harnois, 414 East Walnut street, was a quiet event in the Arizona city. Judge Freeman officiated at the ceremony, for which the bride wore a grey costume. There were no attendants.

The young people are located temporarily in the home of the bride's parents while Mrs. Winslow is in Hastings, Neb., visiting with relatives. She expects to return home July 1.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Harnois followed graduation from Polytechnic High school with studies at Junior college. The bridegroom is employed in Westminister.

News of the Harnois-Winslow wedding was revealed the same evening that announcement was made of the engagement and approaching July wedding of Miss Karla Nielsen and Charles Manderscheid.

Bride-elect Showered With Many Gifts

Among various parties which have complimented Miss Viola Grout of Orange, so soon to be the bride of Royal Gammell of this city, was one in which women of the United Brethren church displayed their interest in the romance.

An attractive living room arrangement was given the parlors of the church, where many flowers increased the home-like charm as a party setting. Mrs. B. Mustard, Mrs. Will Hart and Mrs. O. M. Harrison formed a hostess committee receiving the guests some half hundred or more in number.

Romance was the theme of one of the games introduced and Mrs. H. A. Colby received the prize. Mrs. Robert Emmerson continued the general theme with an entertaining reading, "Their First Anniversary," as did Mrs. Melvin McNeal with her amusing skit, "How to Care for a Husband."

Each of the guests contributed her favorite recipe to aid the bride of the future in her culinary activities. While she was still looking over these a messenger arrived with a call for her, and she had the pleasure of opening a collection of miscellaneous gift packages.

Wedding In Angelus Temple Will Be Broadcast Sunday

Scores of friends who will be unable to motor to Los Angeles tomorrow evening for the wedding in Angelus Temple of Walter L. Kaufman of Balboa Island, and Miss Effie Elizabeth Bishop of Long Beach, will be able to hear the rites conducted by the Rev. Aimee Semple McPherson, and the beautiful music of the service. For the wedding will be broadcast over Radio KFSG, so that friends of the couple may be present in spirit at least.

Mr. Kaufman is the son of Mr. Charles Kaufman, 1623 East First street, and the family has long been a prominent one in Orange county business circles. Walter Kaufman attended Santa Ana schools, and has been especially interested in Masonry in which he has achieved a high degree and held many offices.

His bride is the daughter of Mrs. Grace L. Bishop of Goshen, Calif., and had her grammar school studies in Visalia.

For her wedding tomorrow at 9 p. m. Miss Bishop will be in heavy ivory satin with which she will wear a train-length veil falling from a chaplet of orange blossoms. She will carry gardenias wreathed with sweet peas and bouvardia and centered with a spray of orchids.

There will be a large wedding party including Miss Helen Brierly of Long Beach, as maid of honor, costumed in silver-orchid satin and carrying a colonial bouquet whose colors will accent her gown.

Bridesmaids will carry similar bouquets in different color harmonies to harmonize with their graceful organdy frocks. They will be Mrs. Ruth Allen in pale blue; Mrs. P. B. Correll in pink; Miss Joy Nash in apple green; Miss Charmaine Kaufman in rose pink; Miss Mercedes Kaufman in peach; Miss Claire Leonard in yellow; Mrs. N. M. Crowley in larkspur blue.

Mr. Kaufman's attendants will include his best man, Wesley Pugh of Balboa Island, and the ushers, Stanley Allen, Philip Correll, Worden Bishop, Edward Duckett, Selwyn Brown and N. M. Crowley. All will wear white linen suits with the exception of bridegroom and best man who will be in formal evening attire.

The music program will be presented by the Temple organist and soloists and will be an elaborate one.

Reception Plans
There will be only the briefest reception at the church, as the bride and bridegroom and their wedding party are to be complimented at a buffet supper on Balboa Island with Gordon Fevis as host. Later the new Mr. and Mrs. Kaufman will depart for Catalina Island where they will spend their honeymoon. The bride has chosen for the trip, a smart sports suit in gray with which she will wear the orchids from her bridal bouquet. They will return to make their home for the present on Balboa Island.

It is believed that kissing originated from the desire of men to know whether their wives and daughters had tasted wine.

Double Anniversary

Father's day in the J. W. Taylor home, 418 West Santa Clara avenue, will be reminiscent of two weddings, for tomorrow will mark the 44th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, and the third anniversary of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Steiner of Kerman, Cal.

Mrs. Steiner is the former Miss Laura Taylor. With her husband and their little son, Carl, she is spending a two weeks' vacation in this city. The visitors are renewing old friendships in Santa Ana and neighboring cities.

A SERMONETTE "COME TO CHURCH CAMPAIGN"

By REV. G. G. SCHMID, Minister
First Evangelical Church, Santa Ana

REV. G. G. SCHMID

First Evangelical Church, Corner Tenth and Main Sts. — Santa Ana

— "The Christian Defined" —

"And the disciples were called Christians first at Antioch."
—Acts 11:26.

Rethinking for the purpose of restating formulas and definitions, has been carried into many fields of thought and activity. Some of this rethinking is helpful, some very necessary for a clearer understanding of the matter, and often for the emphasis of a new impact. A bewildered world is demanding to know in unequivocal terms what it is all about.

The definition of a Christian for the modern mind may employ new terms, which need not disturb us any more than new terms in astronomy or any of the sciences. Often it is more a matter of restating, and not infrequently reiteration of fundamental principles. This may be seen in our first formula: The Christian is a believer in Christ. This is more than the appropriation of a name. It must be a belief that does not limit itself to the mere record of a life, but which accepts Christ as He offers Himself to men, whom the human heart may actually experience. Jesus did claim the belief of men on the ground of his power and authority, but He prefers to claim it on the ground of his personality. That kind of belief results in a glorious experience which leads to an obedient discipleship, a living fellowship, and a constant companionship.

The correctness of our definition is immediately seen in the resulting life that harmonizes with the belief in Christ. This belief becomes objectified, as Peter expresses it: "show forth the praises of Him who hath called us from darkness unto His marvelous light." Paul says: "Copy me as I copy Christ." (I. Cor. 11:1. Moffatt.)

This can be said of the Christian Religion only. Imagine copying Mohammed, or some of the Greek gods! The sculpture copies the masterpiece, or the most nearly perfect model obtainable. It is said that Anton Lange was Oberammergau's most efficient impersonator of the Christus in the Passion Play. This was due to his constant study of the life and character of Jesus. The true Christian, who is an imitator of Christ, proves his religion through opportunity to proclaim his experience of Christ, by word of mouth, is denied him.

The definition of the Christian includes the active application of his best powers in the cause which drew from Jesus a life of unselfish service. He is a Christian who shares in the purpose of Christ. The men and women who made the largest contribution to the illumination of the world, lighted their torches in Him who said He was the light of the world. Halfheartedness in the follower of Christ is all but a denial of the faith. Enthusiasm and sustaining zeal characterizes the real Christian. Such a Christian may be called eccentric, as that term is used to describe fanaticism in religion. But eccentricity is movement, even though it be movement off center. Better move a bit off center than not at all. It is less of a miracle to correct eccentricity, than to resurrect a dead formality. John Temple Graves declares that youth should eliminate from the soul, fear, self-indulgence, jealousy and prejudice, then continues: "Add to these a firm belief in Almighty God, and a fixed resolve for service to humanity and there is nothing on earth or in the waters under the earth that can long impede success or continually thwart its human recognition."

From the trenchant pen of Dr. J. H. Jowett we take this: "The church is to live Christ, to express Christ, to give Christ visibility in human life and service." Hence our rethinking of what is involved in being a Christian leads to this reiteration: He is a Christian who believes in Christ, imitates Christ, and shares His zeal in His world program.

THE TINIES

Story by HAL COCHRAN Art by GEORGE SCARBO

"These light bulbs are real funny. Gee, each one once was a great big tree," said Copsy. "I'm sure we are in a very crazy place."

"At least, we're seeing something new. We'll do just what we're told to do. The guards have said that we must walk so no one start to race."

"Of course, not! I won't take a chance, 'cause I might get shot in the pants with one of those small cork guns," said wee Duncy, with a smile.

"As long as I am treated well, I guess there is no need to yell. However, I hope we will get out of here after while."

"Don't worry, son," one small guard said. "Just keep on walking straight ahead. The bulbs can't last forever. We'll soon reach an open spot."

"Upon it you are going to see a chance, 'cause I might get shot in the pants with one of those small cork guns," said wee Duncy, with a smile.

"Oh, who lives there?" fair Goldy cried. "And, will you let us go inside? I always have loved palaces. Does this one house a king?"

"If so, is he an ugly sort, or will we find him a good sport?" The guard replied. "Right now, I will not say another thing."

So, on they marched till it grew dark and Windy said, "This is a lark. I'll bet we're going to lose our way." A guard snapped, "No, sire."

"Now we are going to pull a trick. It's one that you'll agree is slick. In just about a minute, very plainly you will see."

Then came a very big surprise that made the Tinies blink their eyes. The electric light bulbs that rose from the ground began to blaze.

A guard cried, "It is dark no more. We'll do just what we're told to do. The guards have said that we must walk so no one start to race."

"Of course, not! I won't take a chance, 'cause I might get shot in the pants with one of those small cork guns," said wee Duncy, with a smile.

"As long as I am treated well, I guess there is no need to yell. However, I hope we will get out of here after while."

"Don't worry, son," one small guard said. "Just keep on walking straight ahead. The bulbs can't last forever. We'll soon reach an open spot."

"Upon it you are going to see a chance, 'cause I might get shot in the pants with one of those small cork guns," said wee Duncy, with a smile.

"Oh, who lives there?" fair Goldy cried. "And, will you let us go inside? I always have loved palaces. Does this one house a king?"

"If so, is he an ugly sort, or will we find him a good sport?" The guard replied. "Right now, I will not say another thing."

So, on they marched till it grew dark and Windy said, "This is a lark. I'll bet we're going to lose our way." A guard snapped, "No, sire."

Today's Guest Editorial

By
BY A. J. CRUICKSHANK
President, California Tuberculosis Association

The "Guest Editor" selects his own subject matter and it may or may not agree with the opinions of the publisher. The Register will invite and publish daily a "guest editorial" by some prominent, practical Orange county citizen.

WHY SHOULD WE TUBERCULIN TEST OUR CHILDREN

How often have you heard someone say, "My children can't possibly have tuberculosis. There has never been any in our family?"

Some say this with justifiable pride in an excellent family health record.

Some say this in ignorance, believing that tuberculosis is inherited.

Both attitudes are wrong. Tuberculosis cannot be inherited. It frequently runs in families, and is often called a "family disease" because the closeness and prolonged contact of people in their homes makes easy the spread of this infectious disease. In the majority of cases where the source of infection is known it has been traced to other members of the family or to close friends.

But in many cases of tuberculosis—perhaps more than half of all cases—the source of infection is never discovered, though often the family and friends are carefully examined for any evidence of the disease. Yet we know that such a source of infection exists. Tuberculosis is passed from person to person.

Physicians and health workers say that such persons who have received their disease from no known source have been infected through "casual contact."

What is casual contact? It may be the frequent meeting with an acquaintance. It may be the chance meeting with someone in a crowd. It may be the combination of many meetings with many people. But for every case of tuberculosis there is always a source—some person or persons with the disease, perhaps hidden beneath the appearance of health, yet passing infection to others.

We meet such casual contacts daily. Our children meet them in the schools. Often these contacts lead only to slight infection with which the healthy body can cope; but repeated infections may bring disease.

The Orange County Tuberculosis and Health Association has been forwarding the tuberculin testing of school children in the county. In other counties in California the local tuberculosis associations are carrying on similar programs.

With the tuberculin test can be discovered all who have received infection with the germs of tuberculosis. Those who react to the test usually do not have disease and may never develop it; but for their protection from tuberculosis it is wise to know if they have received infection and to protect them from further contact with the source of their infection.

In the tuberculin testing surveys, those who are found to harbor infection are examined with the X-ray to see if disease is present. Frequently, the childhood type of disease is found, which, if proper care is taken, will do no damage.

Occasionally a child will be found with active disease, spreading infection to his playmates.

Occasionally a teacher will be discovered with active tuberculosis hidden under the appearance of health, who is spreading the germs of the disease to her pupils. Careful studies with the tuberculin test have shown that such a teacher may infect a quarter to two-thirds of the pupils she teaches.

The value of such tuberculin testing surveys will never be questioned by those who take the trouble to examine the reports of the numbers of children found with infection—often one-quarter of the school population—and the number of cases of disease and sources of infection discovered.

Tuberculosis is very much like other communicable diseases, such as diphtheria, but because it develops slowly and usually without physical symptoms in its early stages, it often goes undetected. Only by testing with tuberculin and X-raying those who are infected can we bring this insidious disease to light and protect our children.

The people of Orange county should give their whole-hearted endorsement to the campaign of the Orange County Tuberculosis and Health Association to tuberculin test all school children and should insist that teachers and all others in the schools who come in daily contact with their children, however casual that contact, be examined also.

ORANGE COUNTY CLIMATE

A few Santa Ana citizens just returned from Phoenix the fore part of this week. They contend that those who do not appreciate the Orange County climate will have a much better appreciation if they will take a little trip from here to Arizona. The Santa Anans reported that when they were in Phoenix the thermometer registered 128 in the shade. They are all bigger boosters for Orange County than they were before they made the trip.

WHY OUR GOVERNMENT HAS LASTED SO LONG

Walter Lippmann, in a commencement address delivered at the University of Rochester, makes some very interesting comments on why the American people have operated a government under the same Constitution longer than any other people in the world today.

Lippmann very clearly analyzes why our government has endured the trials for a century and a half.

He points out that it is not due to the magic of the party system and to the infallible wisdom of elected majorities. He says our form of government has worked because of two fundamental reasons.

In explaining these reasons, Lippmann says: "The first is that government in America has not, hitherto, been permitted to attempt to do many things. Its problems have been kept within the capacity of ordinary men.

"The second reason why democracy has worked in America is that outside the government and outside the party system there have existed independent institutions and independent men. Foremost among the independent institutions has been the judiciary with its power to review the actions of the Legislature and the Executive. But the judiciary has not stood alone outside the political government and the parties. There have been others, notably the free churches, the free press, the free universities, and, no less important to the preservation of democracy, free men with sufficient secured property of their own, farms, factories, shops, professions, savings, which were protected by the law and not dependent upon the will of elected or appointed officials. It has been because the courts, the churches, the press, the schools, and private property have existed independently of government that the nation has remained the master, that it has not become the servant of its government.

"The deepest issue of our time is whether the civilized peoples can maintain and develop a free society or whether they are to fall back into the ancient order of things when the whole of men's existence, their consciences, their science, their arts, their labor and their integrity as individuals were at the disposition of the rulers of the state."

The United States and the world over is facing this problem now as it has not faced it for centuries. Olga Gassett, the great Spanish historian, vividly brought this out in his book, a few years ago, called "Revolution of the Masses."

Walter Lippmann continued his discussion on this subject as follows: "The world is faced with a stupendous reaction and that makes that reaction peculiarly dangerous is that those who are leading this reaction are for the most part convinced that they are the leaders of progress. Not to believe that government must regulate all human affairs is currently regarded as stupidly reactionary by those who imagine themselves the pioneers of a new world. No one these days can, it would seem, conceive a project for the improvement of men's condition except by magnifying and intensifying the activity of governments.

"But governments are composed of men, not supermen, not geniuses, mere men, imperfectly educated, not wholly disinterested, with very limited powers, and no greater delusion has ever cast its spell upon the human imagination than that a group of mortal men can plan the future of a society and direct the affairs of a whole civilization. It is the presumption of ignorance to believe that; to attempt it is to take the road to ruin. For when governments attempt more than men with their abilities are fitted to do, the more they attempt, the worse they will do it. The men who said that this must be a government of limited powers were men who understood mankind.

"Not only must a government limit its functions if it is to be successfully operated, but it must jealously guard the independence of the people, their courts, their churches, their press, their universities, and their property. It must guard them against dependence upon the government and subjection to it and against private privilege, private monopoly and private lawlessness."

We wonder whether Lippmann, in this discussion is thinking of the present administration.

How much the government has the right to interfere with the initiative and liberty of the people will be a question the voters will have to decide in November. There is not much question but what the Democratic Party, under the leadership of the President, will go much farther in its desire to control individual liberty than the Republican Party.

If it had not been for the Constitution and the Supreme Court, under the present Congress and the present administration, individuals would not have had the right to raise and sell six bushels of potatoes without the consent of the government. It would have been a criminal offense and any citizen of the United States who used his initiative to grow and market potatoes without the consent of the central government could have been put in jail for exercising what the framers of the Constitution, under the first ten amendments, regarded as the rights of the individual which should never be interfered with by any government.

It seems to us that Lippmann has performed a service by so clearly setting forth why we have survived so long under the present Constitution. Anyone who has read comparative history, knows that our standard of living, under the competitive system, has advanced more rapidly than any other nation, where the rights of the individual were under the domination and control of the central government, whether it be a monarchy or a pure democracy.

What Other Editors Say

COMPROMISING A COMPROMISE
New York Times

After little debate worthy of the name, the House at the end of April passed one of the worst revenue bills in its history. The corporation tax embodied in that bill was so badly drawn, so ludicrously complicated, that it did not find a single supporter in the Senate. Even those who favored the principle of a corporation tax solely on undistributed profits could not stomach it in that form. The Senate Tax Committee, at first by no means hostile, began its hearings. Treasury officials spoke well of it because they had feared the measure. Aside from these, nearly every witness that appeared condemned it.

It was pointed out that the tendency of such a tax was drastically to penalize thrift and careful management, that it put a premium on corporate improvidence; that it would prevent the growth of new corporations, retard business expansion and re-employment; that it would greatly aggravate the violence of the up-and-down swings of the business cycle and of the Treasury's own revenues, and increase bankruptcies in bad years. Witnesses pointed out also that the Treasury estimates of yields were surprisingly optimistic concerning the revenues to be got from the new tax and suspiciously pessimistic concerning those to be had from the old tax.

The "reform" aspects of the measure were also ridiculed. It was pointed out that the Treasury's huge estimates of "tax avoidance" could not be justified, that some of the Treasury officials had overstated this even on the basis of the Treasury's own assumptions; that those assumptions made an untenably low estimate of dividends that would be paid if the new bill did not pass; and that in the thirteen-year period from 1921 to 1933 the corporations had paid out total dividends of $50,700,000,000, though their total net income for the period was only $41,000,000,000. It was pointed out that much of what the Treasury called "tax avoidance" could not be called that except by an absurd stretching of the term; that long before there was any such thing as an income tax to avoid, corporations had retained substantial surpluses for reinvestment or because of the demands of ordinary business prudence. Even the House, asked originally to tax all retained profits, found it necessary to exempt taxes required by law to build up surplus; insurance companies, corporations in receivership and corporations under contract to bondholders or banks not to pay out dividends under certain circumstances. But these exemptions were partial and arbitrarily restricted. It is just as necessary for an industrial corporation as for a bank to build up sufficient surplus to assure its stability and solvency. A corporation that retains profits to invest in new machines or additional plants is not "avoiding taxes"; it is helping the nation's industrial expansion and providing increased opportunities for re-employment. Yet the fanatically short-sighted bill passed by the House would have treated this as reprehensible, and would have made it close to impossible.

"The majority of the Senate Tax Committee, and the majority of the Senate itself, recognized both the separate and the cumulative weight of most of these and many other objections. They refused to penalize unduly the corporations not availed of for surtax avoidance in order to reach the comparatively few that were. Instead, they strengthened the provisions directed explicitly against the latter corporations. But they did make a substantial compromise with the House principle. Originally a majority of the Senate Tax Committee was in favor of imposing only a flat 4 per cent tax on retained corporate surpluses, in addition to the regular corporation income tax, but yielded after a minority of the committee threatened, unless a further compromise of a flat 7 per cent tax on corporate surpluses was accepted, to carry the fight to the floor.

In view of these arguments and this history, it is discouraging and disturbing to read that the President and the House tax conference still insist on a tax nearer to the House bill than to the Senate bill, which is already a bad enough compromise with the House measure. Nor do more explicit reports of the rates and brackets being discussed provide any reassurance. A corporation earning $1,000,000, taxed 15 per cent on its net income, 5 per cent on the first fifth of that income withheld, 12 per cent on the second fifth, 20 per cent on the third fifth, and 30 per cent thereafter, would be obliged, if it found it necessary to retain all its earnings, to pay a maximum rate of 45 and an average rate of nearly 35 per cent on its earnings. This would be an increase of about 130 per cent in its present tax rate. Such an increase would not merely place a wholly inadequate burden on small stockholders but would reduce the stability and seriously retard the growth of an industrial production.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

HOME TENSIONS

A considerable number of the difficulties parents have with children, and teachers with pupils, can be traced to the tensions they create themselves. Nervous tension that creates fear, anxiety, irritability and temper in the mind of the adult seeps through to the children. They feel what is going on in the minds of those about them, and their conduct is affected by that feeling.

Parents do not know this. A highly nervous mother, tense a every muscle, her voice sharp, her movements abrupt and restless, goes to the school and says: "I wish you would do something about Carl. He is getting on my nerves so that I'm ready to fly out of the window. He fusses and fidgets, he talks back, he cries when I scold him. What can be done with him?"

The question should be: "What can be done FOR him?" And the answer might be: "Send him away for a vacation or send his mother away for a rest." The boy feels the tension that is working in his mother. He is uneasy under her constant reproaches, her constant follow-up. He is never certain about her feelings or her actions, and consequently he takes on tensions in his turn. If his tired mother could have a rest, away from the family for a time, the boy would soon recover his normal good health and behavior.

It is not always mother who is the tense one. Other members of the family are afflicted with the same trouble. These are trying days for everybody, especially for those of us who have to earn our living. Nerves are strained and fidgety. Doubts and worries beset us. Unless we find some way of relieving these tensions we carry them home and pass them along to the rest of the family.

until the whole group are as brittle as spun glass.

We cannot all go on vacation. We cannot break up a family and send each to a quiet place to restore his soul. But we must try to find release in some pleasant way and help ourselves to establish better atmosphere in our homes.

It is good to get out of the house and away from the usual routine, away from the familiar duties and the familiar things of home. Most people have cars, and the roads are good. Why not pack up the troubles and take them out to the open country and leave them there on the bosom of Old Mother Earth herself? It is the best of all cures for family tensions.

Let those who like to fish, fish; those who like to climb, go to it. The one who wants to stay by himself and study the depths of the high blue sky needs to do just that and ought to be encouraged to it. What makes living in families so hard at times is the feeling that one must share in all that the others are doing or be disloyal. That is a strain on anyone's nerves. It is trying to be someone else, and there is nothing more painful than that.

Get away. Lose each other for the hour or the day. Throw away the feeling of family responsibility for the brief period of freedom. The whole family will come back refreshed, brightened, and far more affectionate. The tensions will be lessened and the problems so much simpler than one dreamed possible. And the children will be "good."

CHRONICLES OF THE LITTLE GRAY HOUSE

Another eating adventure. We had only time enough to fasten Tipperary and Pancho-the-Manx-Cat up in the Little Gray house and then fly to an evening assignment. So to avert starvation, we stopped for a certain superlative minute steak sandwich. Someone nearby was munching cashew nuts. And the youth next to us at the counter, could really tell how they grow. The nuts, it seems, are the seeds of the fruit itself, which is not edible. The manner in which they curl around the fruit, is what causes them to curve like small crescent moons.

Did you know that? I didn't. Did you know that beavers do NOT use their paddle-like tails in constructing their dams, but pat them smooth with their forepaws? I didn't. Did you know that down in southern swamps where wild geese are feeding, one majestic old gander is stationed on guard and that he never relaxes even long enough to snatch up some tempting tidbit? If he has cause to give alarm and the flock takes flight, he simply doesn't eat until relieved by the next member of the flock to be set on guard? I didn't.

That young man is a nature lover. He has watched a beaver at work, wild geese at rest and elk at play. He has sought the hoarded pinon nuts of the trade rats; he has climber wandering muscadine vines for the spicy tang of the fruit. He has listened to his father tell of days when prairie hens were so plentiful that a net like butterflies. He is interested in conservation of the country's wild life. I was sorry when my sandwich was gone and I had to leave.

BRIDE'S PRAYER

A husband, Lord, I now shall take I pray that he for love's own sake At me will not neglect to smile But not too much—nor all the while;

Remember, well, the art of praise Which serves to brighten darkest days, And shows what ever else it brings.

Respect remains with wedding rings; Will not hold out in every whim But lets me dictate just a bit. If these attentions he can give With him, dear Lord, I'll love to live!

And, Lord, I also hold it true There's some remembering I must do!

Amen.

IN MEMORY OF MY FATHER

The memory of my father Is a sacred thing to me. A man of rugged character, O he loved me tenderly.

The courage of my father Is a heritage divine, This man who onward struggled And whose love was always mine.

The memory of my father Is a blessed thing always Through him, I knew fresh courage.

And used it day by day. The treasures of our Father, Great Father of us all, Are just as freely given— He answers ere we call.

So the memory of my father Is a sacred thing to me, For through him, the glorious meaning.

Of God's gift I clearly see, Kathryn M. Shaw.

HAPPY EXPERIENCE

It was published almost a year ago, but I never happened to discover Donald Peattie's delightful essay: "An Almanac For Moderns" until this week. It is a book one longs to own: clear, simple prose that sings like a brook. Turn to "June Twentieth" for instance and read what he says of the wood thrush. "Something of spring will linger while he comes forth in the cool of the day to spin a bit of magic for the weary. Cool, cool and tranquil, he drops his notes into the evening, distilling peace."
